Bank of America Provides Critical Emergency Relief Funding to The Community FoodBank of New Jersey

New Jersey Non-Profit to Use Funds to Fight Food Insecurity Throughout Pandemic

Hillside, New Jersey—April 22, 2020 - The Community FoodBank of New Jersey (CFBNJ), the state’s largest anti-hunger, anti-poverty nonprofit, announced today that it has received a grant from Bank of America to help meet the growing need for food assistance in direct response to the coronavirus.

The $1.6 million contribution from Bank of America will help CFBNJ create and distribute emergency meal kits. To date, the organization has provided 20,000 kits, each containing enough nonperishable food for 40 meals. The funds will also help increase distribution of nutritious food to CFBNJ’s network of partner agencies across its 16-county service area. Additionally, CFBNJ has delivered thousands of low-sodium prepared meals per week directly to homebound seniors, distributed 9,000 Family Packs to families of kids without access to school breakfasts and lunches, and continued Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) outreach efforts to connect neighbors in need with long-term food assistance.

Bank of America’s generosity, combined with gifts from other organizations and individuals, is needed now more than ever. Feeding America projects a shortfall of $1.4 billion, $20 million in New Jersey alone, in additional food resources needed to meet the growing demand for food assistance nationwide through the summer.

“With the shuttering of businesses across the state due to the coronavirus, countless people are facing the realities of reduced work hours, layoffs, and missed paychecks. The need for CFBNJ’s services is growing day by day,” said Carlos Rodriguez, President & CEO of The Community FoodBank of New Jersey. “We are so grateful for Bank of America’s decades-long leadership investment in our mission and for this most recent contribution, which will allow us to serve as a lifeline for so many New Jersey residents, some of whom are finding themselves in need for the first time in their lives.”

CFBNJ also intends to leverage a portion of these funds, in partnership with Bank of America, as a matching gift opportunity now and throughout the summer, when the need for hunger relief will likely continue to increase.

“For over 40 years The Community FoodBank of New Jersey has been instrumental in fighting hunger and poverty in New Jersey,” said Alberto Garofalo, New Jersey market president, Bank of America. “We are here to ensure CFBNJ has the resources needed during this current environment to serve our community and fill the emptiness caused by food insecurity.”

Before the coronavirus, more than 660,000 neighbors in need resided in CFBNJ’s service area. Now, the increase in demand for food is about fifty percent in communities that were hit the hardest. In response, CFBNJ supplied food to support 4.8 million nutritious meals in March alone—about 786,000 more meals than usual. To address mounting operational challenges and adapt to changing health concerns, CFBNJ shifted to a three-shift 24-hour operation, working around the clock six days a week to provide for New Jerseyans in need.
